Story of the Week: Isis T. Johnson
Week of January 1-7, 2023

Sunday Story: Isis T. Johnson

Read about how the youngest person in our book teaches us a powerful lesson. When four-year-old Isis Johnson saw children starving in Africa she wanted to send them some food. Learn how she & her grandmother galvanized her community in New Orleans to help hungry children.

The Institute's Annual Community Service Project to benefit a remote school in La Puerta, Guatemala

Thursday: The Institute's Community Service Program

Each year young people in The Institute's leadership programs organize community service projects to help children in remote mountain village in Guatemala as well as refugees in Providence, RI. Together they learn the powerful lesson of giving back - and discover the real joy of Christmas season.

Saturday Press

Jose Andres' deep commitment to President Zelensky and the people of Ukraine inspires us all to give. "In Kherson, standing shoulder-to-shoulder with World Central Kitchen teams as they got food and water so fast to families in need, was one of the proudest moments of my life. It is because of WCK Food Fighters and supporters around the world that we are the only large-scale food aid in the city. Together, we will all help Kherson, and other regions around Ukraine, get through the long, hard winter."
